

Depressing West Shore Tracks, Plan to Study Budget Get Attention

Taxpayers' Association Discusses Relief, City Budget, Track Depression and Charter Amendments—To Attend Council Meeting.

The inauguration at this time of the long discussed project of doing away with the West Shore railroad crossing at Broadway, by lowering the railroad tracks, would be the "salvation of the city" and "break the depression" as far as this locality is concerned, according to former Mayor Palmer Canfield.

Mr. Canfield made the statement during a discussion of the matter at the meeting of the Kingston Taxpayers' Association at the city hall Monday evening. He went somewhat into detail as to the history of the movement to do away with the crossing and the various plans that had been suggested, saying that the New York Central had spent $40,000 in preparing different plans. The Public Service Commission had approved the elimination of the crossing. In 1920, Mr. Canfield stated, but would not order the railroad to depress their tracks because of the heavy cost and the fact that the railroad was not in a position to finance the matter at the time. Action had since been held up by court actions. He said that at this time the money could be secured from the federal government, which would pay 30 percent of the cost and loan the balance at four per cent interest.

It was further stated that the work of eliminating the crossing by depressing the tracks would take about two years, would put from one to two thousand men at work and mean the disbursement of a huge sum of money in the city.

A motion was passed directing President Jay Terry to take the matter up with the Public Service Commission, communicating the association's approval of the plan and also to put it before the Common Council and if possible get the active cooperation of that body.

Mr. Canfield also brought up the question of action on the budget for next year, saying that the association should not wait until the budget was presented to the Common Council, but that the budget committee should go over the various department reports, as soon as they were available. On motion Mr. Canfield was added to the regular budget committee.

Chas. E. Lane, of the committee named at the September meeting to put on a canvass for new members of the association, stated that the committee had held two meetings and was planning its campaign, but would need an appropriation for stationery. The committee was given authority to procure what it needed.

The matter of the various charter amendments some time since adopted by the association and submitted to the Common Council again came up for discussion. The secretary, Andrew Ferguson, said that he had written several letters but had received no satisfaction. Mr. Terry said that he had been given to understand that the amendments had been turned over to the corporation counsel and apparently had been pigeon-holed. Mr. Canfield said that three of the amendments had been approved and he saw no reason why they should have been referred. On motion a committee was named to attend the meeting of the Common Council this evening and "insist that the amendments be acted upon." The president appointed Messrs Canfield, Richter and Ferguson as such committee.

Growing expenditures for relief work and the burden they place upon the taxpayer, a subject that in some form comes up at nearly every meeting of the association, was again discussed at some length Monday evening. Mr. Terry brought the matter up with references to the recent statement that $150,000 would be needed for work relief and to statistics showing the increase in cost of government in cities generally. In the discussion which followed there was tart reference to "people who don't earn $10 a week but are riding around in automobiles," and someone brought up the alleged case of a man who it was claimed had been earning $16 or $17 a week, quit because he was not getting enough money and had been living off the city ever since." Mr. Richter referred to the proposition, heretofore debated, of publishing the names of those receiving relief. Objection was made to this on the ground that many deserving help would refuse to receive it if this procedure was followed and that it would make the people "dumb with despair." Another member replied that the present method was bringing the taxpayers to a point where they were sending "dumb with despair."

Mr. Terry said he believed that people who needed help should be taken care of, but that it should be done justly. He proposed that work to be done should be carefully selected and put out by contract, that a rate of wages deemed to be fair should be specified and that people who own property and have to pay taxes should be taken care of.

The proposition was also advanced that the city have its own commissary department and that supplies for relief work be purchased in carload lots, which would result in a great saving.

Ulster County Bar In Tribute To Late Judge Clearwater and Attorney DeWitt Ostrander

Tribute to two members of the Ulster County Bar was paid Monday afternoon at the opening session of the October term of supreme court and resolutions on the death of the late members of the bar were adopted and ordered spread upon the minutes of the court by Judge Foster, presiding judge.

On August 18, DeWitt Ostrander of Clintondale died and on September 23, Judge A. T. Clearwater, dean of the Ulster County Bar and a former supreme court judge, died. A committee of three members was appointed to prepare and present resolutions on the death of Mr. Ostrander who since 1889 had been practicing law in this county. That committee was Judge Joseph M. Fowler, S. G. Carpenter and Andrew W. Lent. Judge Fowler, chairman of the committee, presented the following resolution which was directed entered upon the minutes of the court:

Since the last term of this court, and on August 19, 1933, death removed from this bar one of its oldest members, DeWitt Ostrander, of Clintondale.

Born December 20, 1859, of Huguenot ancestry, graduating at Okauchee Seminary and Albany Law School, and after a clerkship with Hon. S. G. Young, he was admitted to the practice of law in 1880, and the following year opened an office in Clintondale. During a practice of upwards of 50 years, he faithfully served a clientele resident generally in the towns of southern Ulster; a practice of a most varied nature, requiring not only a broad knowledge of law, but of equity, an understanding of human nature, an appreciation of values and a sense of humor—all these he had.

Some years ago, he was retained by clients in the Mohawk Valley whose cases required the establishment by the court of titles through Dutch grants as against English grants. To these questions Mr. Ostrander gave weeks in research of records and reports at Albany, and his brief which prevailed in the Court of Appeals is a monument to his ability and industry. As a trial lawyer, he was especially effective before a jury.

Speaking for the Ulster County Bar Association:

"WE THEREFORE MOVE that the Clerk of this Court be directed to make a permanent note and record of the death of DeWitt W. Ostrander, member of the Ulster County Bar, of the respect and appreciation held for him by his fellow members of the Bar and of their deep feeling of loss in his passing, and we further MOVE that the Clerk cause to be sent to his wife a copy of this preamble and motion.

JOS. M. FOWLER,
S. G. CARPENTER,
ANDREW W. LENT,
Committee of Bar Association.

Oct. 2, 1933.

In directing that the resolution be entered upon the minutes of the court Judge Foster said that while Mr. Ostrander had not appeared in court frequently of late, he had known Mr. Ostrander in the title actions referred to by the committee and that in the passing of Mr. Ostrander the Ulster County Bar had lost a learned member whose death was mourned by the bench of the district.

When Judge Hasbrouck, chairman of the committee on resolutions in regard to the death of Judge Clearwater, had presented the resolution prepared by that committee he in turn paid a beautiful personal tribute to the Judge. Senator Walton in seconding the adoption of the resolution offered also paid a personal tribute to Judge Clearwater in whose office he had been a law student, as had Judge Hasbrouck. At the conclusion of the remarks Judge Foster expressed the regret of the members of the bench of this district on the death of Judge Clearwater and continuing said that to add to the eulogy he would not attempt. Many of the present older members of the bar were not even members of the bar when Judge Clearwater was a great lawyer. The career of Judge Clearwater he said needed no review, it was such that everyone knew of his success and he predicted that in the future Judge Clearwater will be classed as one of the greatest lawyers of the state. In closing he said that the bench laments the passing of a great lawyer and a great citizen. He directed that the resolutions be made a permanent part of the record of the court and that copies be forwarded to the families of deceased.

The resolution of the bar association on the death of Judge Clearwater is as follows:

Whereas the Divine Ruler of the universe and the affairs of men has again taken, by the process of nature, one of our members and has deeply afflicted and left vastly poorer the bar of Ulster county by the passing of its chiefest ornament, therefore, be it

Resolved, that the following minute and tribute be spread upon the minutes of the court:

Alphonso T. Clearwater was born September 11, 1848, at West Point, New York, and died September 23, 1933. He was a member of this bar for nearly 62 years. For nine

Injuries Are Fatal To "Young" Stribling

Georgia Heavyweight Dies of Injuries Received in Collision Between His Motorcycle And An Automobile.

Macon, Ga., Oct. 3 (AP)—William Lawrence (Young) Stribling, Georgia heavyweight, died at 6 a. m. eastern standard time today from injuries received Sunday in a motor accident.

The end came an hour after the fighter lapsed into unconsciousness, following a dogged fight which his physicians said was possible only by a person of his tremendous vitality.

At his bedside were his parents "Pa" and "Ma" Stribling, his manager and trainer, his wife, Claire, herself a patient at the hospital following the birth of their third child, born two weeks ago, and a younger brother, Herbert, a fighter in his own right.

Physicians said death was due to complications arising from internal injuries suffered when Stribling's left foot was severed and his pelvis crushed in a collision between his motorcycle and an automobile.

For a while last night the physicians held hope for Stribling's recovery, but in the early morning hours they saw his tremendous vitality begin to ebb. Then they knew it was a matter of hours before he would go.

Members of his family gathered in the white-walled hospital room at 3 a. m. After hope for his recovery was abandoned. He held on gamely, rousing occasionally to ask for water, but at 5 o'clock his stout heart began weakening rapidly.

Once, he recognized his wife. "Hello, baby," were his last words to her.

Shortly before she had been wheeled into the room and throwing her arms about his neck, murmured "W. L."

"Sugar," was the barely audible reply.

Cuba Tries To Restore A Semblance of Order After Monday's Fight

Rains and High Winds Sweep Havana—Few People Use Streets and Patronize Shops—Checking Casualties.

Havana, Oct. 3 (AP).—Swept by rainstorms and high winds, Havana struggled bravely today to restore a semblance of order after yesterday's bloodshed and rioting.

Stores and cafes were reopened, but there were few customers, and most pedestrians who ventured forth were in search of news concerning missing friends or relatives.

Meantime, the army continued checking casualties in an effort to establish whether there were more than the reported 44 dead and 59 wounded in yesterday's fighting.

Dozens of relatives of missing army men and civilians telephoned or visited the Associated Press office, women crying hysterically as they pleaded for assistance in their search. Army headquarters emphatically denied persistent rumors that eight to a score of the officers who surrendered after a long battle at the National Hotel were slain as they were being taken across the bay by barge to Cabana Fortress. Some of the rumors said the men were shot by snipers.

Austrian Chancellor Shot Twice by Soldier Discharged from Army

Chancellor Dollfuss Only Slightly Wounded, Left Hospital Shortly After Treatment—Will Continue Duties From His Home.

Vienna, Oct. 3 (AP).—Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was slightly wounded in two places by a would-be assassin today, but an hour after receiving treatment at a hospital he was able to go to his home and continue with his official duties from there.

One shot struck him in the left arm and the other grazed his left breast when he was fired upon at the entrance of the Parliament building.

"That was a close one," he remarked to friends as he left the hospital and walked smilingly to his automobile.

A young soldier, recently discharged from the third regiment of infantry was arrested in connection with the attempted assassination, and police began a roundup of all political suspects.

Vice Chancellor Emil Fey was one of the first to visit the hospital. He said Dollfuss soon would be able to move to his home and continue the direction of affairs from there.

Police said the young ex-soldier intercepted the chancellor at the main entrance to the Parliament building and apparently moved as if to hand him a manuscript.

When detectives halted him and took the manuscripts the man stepped back a few paces, drew a pistol and fired.

Young Boy Mauled And Killed By A Bear

Brookhaven, L. I., Oct. 3 (AP).—While passing motorists, afraid to interfere, watched horrified, an 11 year old boy was mauled and killed by a bear near here yesterday.

Grant Taylor, the youthful victim, had stopped to feed an apple to one of two bears tethered in front of an inn.

Whether the animal, without food for two days, according to persons living nearby was hungry, or whether it mistook the fruit for a missile, witness could not say.

At any rate, as young Taylor and Jack Gerhardt, a companion, entered the inn yard, the bear and its mate rose on their haunches and eyed the boys menacingly.

As Taylor tossed the apple to one of the bears, it lunged forward, snapped its chain, and continued on toward the boys.

Panic stricken, the youths fled. Gerhardt vanished down the road. Taylor cowering behind a tree.

Finding itself no longer a prisoner, the bear made for the tree. Young Taylor screamed frantically as the animal seized him.

The ensuing scuffle, the boy's cries and the bear's growls attracted motorists. Afraid to leave their cars, they sat watching.

Fred Raynor, operator of a nearby road stand, ran to his house, got a shotgun and returned and killed the bear.

Gardiner Murdock, proprietor of the inn in front of which the bears were tethered, returned home several hours after the tragedy and surrendered to authorities. He was released in $1,500 bail.

The members of the executive committee are Bruyn Hasbrouck of New Paltz, Ralph LeFever of Rosendale, Arthur B. Merritt of Highland, William A. Van Valkenburg of Kingston and Harold Kamp of Saugerties.

A membership drive will be launched by the new association to enroll the fifty-odd eligible agents of stock companies in Ulster county. The next meeting will be held early in November.

William H. Sears, 53, of Lake Katrine, and Mrs. Florence B. Kemp, 45, of 87 Green Street, this city, were killed Monday evening about 9:55 o'clock when a Buick sedan operated by Mr. Sears left the highway at Port Ewen and crashed into a telephone pole and then after continuing a distance of about 30 feet struck a tree in front of the Schoonmaker residence. Mrs. Kemp, who was employed as a nurse at the Orthman Sanitarium on Washington avenue, was on the pavement when Mr. and Mrs. Martin Schleede, who reside next the Schoonmaker home, rushed out after hearing the impact. Mr. Sears was slumped over in the car moaning. However, before Dr. G. W. Ross arrived a few moments after being summoned by Mr. Schleede, Mr. Sears died.

Just what caused the accident is not known. The car was apparently traveling at fast speed as it approached the top of the hill and started down toward Port Ewen village. Tracks on the pavement indicated that the machine had left the side of the three strip concrete a distance of 130 feet from where it finally came to rest. There were marks on the shoulder of the highway indicating the course which the machine had taken. After traveling a distance of about 100 feet the car collided with a telephone pole on the left or west side of the highway and after breaking the pole in two places it continued on for 30 feet and struck the tree on which the Schoonmaker sign is hung. The force of the impact was terrific and the motor was driven back under the body of the car and one headlight was thrown 100 feet ahead of the car. The door was evidently torn loose by the impact and when people arrived at the scene they found the door open and Mr. Sears partly out of the car.

Trooper Paul Senecal, who had been on pass Monday evening, was returning home in his car and was following the Sears car but a short distance. He arrived on the scene within a moment or two after the crash. He saw the body of Mrs. Kemp on the pavement and stopped. At that time a delivery truck of Roy Bush of Newburgh was passing and Trooper Senecal signaled the driver to stop. In the meantime Mr. and Mrs. Schleede had arrived on the scene and called Dr. G. W. Ross, who responded. The Kingston city ambulance was summoned and also Coroner W. N. Conner's private ambulance was summoned. Arriving before the ambulances, Dr. Ross found that both of the people involved in the accident were beyond medical aid and they were not moved from the scene in the delivery car pending arrival of Coroner W. N. Conner. When Coroner Conner arrived a few minutes after the crash, he made an investigation and then removed the bodies in his ambulance to the Conner Funeral Home on Fair street.

District Attorney Cleon B. Murray was notified of the accident and after ascertaining the facts did not order an autopsy. Sergeant Lockhart was also notified as was Deputy Sheriff Tinnle of Port Ewen. They both responded and assisted in the investigation and in keeping traffic moving.

At the time the two people were found identity of Mr. Sears was made through license papers, and other papers on his person but for a time the identity of Mrs. Kemp was not known.

At the time of their death the two were returning from Highland where they had gone to attend a meeting of the Grange. Mrs. Tracy Munson of Lake Katrine, daughter of Mr. Sears, who had also been at the meeting with her husband, apparently left the meeting after Mr. Sears and Mrs. Kemp and apparently passed the scene of the accident without knowing who was involved.

Marks on the shoulder of the road could be distinguished 100 feet from the pole which the car first struck. Today the Pennington studio was called to take photographs of the scene.

The damaged car was first towed to Neher's Garage but later at the request of relatives it was taken to the "Doc" Smith garage.

The body of Mr. Sears, who died from a crushed breast bone where he came in contact with the steering wheel, and hemorrhage and shock, was later removed at the request of members of the family and turned over to Undertaker Norvin Lasher at Saugerties. Funeral arrangements had not been completed.

Death in the case of Mrs. Kemp was due to concussion of the brain and internal injuries. Mrs. Kemp is survived by two daughters, Ida C. and F. Ariens, also her husband.

SAMSONVILLE

Samsonville, Oct. 3.—F. N. Davis is painting the residence of Pratt Shurtler.

Raymond Davis is afflicted with a very bad cold.

Don C. Van Ethen, Victor Beesmer and Fred L. Haver were the delegates from Samsonville to attend the Democratic caucus held in the I. O. O. F. Hall Saturday afternoon, September 30.

The Ladies' Aid of the Samsonville M. E. Church will serve a hot chicken supper in the hall Tuesday night, October 17. Supper will be served from 6:30 until all are served. Other refreshments will be for sale. Proceeds will be for benefit of the M. E. Church. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Glenn's Protection

A grackle standing on the edge of the forest, or amongst a small group of trees, is as invisible as though he were a spirit, for the marbled brown-and-white markings are a wonderful example of how nature paints her subjects to protect them.

The Children Pay

A University of Pittsburgh survey made of Pittsburgh children appearing before the juvenile court showed that 30 per cent of them were products of broken homes.

Camp at Boiceville Prepares for Winter

Plans Call For 11 Units of Frame Construction Including Several Barracks With Accommodations For 42 Men Each.

Shokan, Oct. 2.—The suspense is over, rumor has given way to fact and the music of saw and hammer soon will be heard in the land. Meaning, of course, that after weeks of uncertainty in the matter a paternal government has seen fit to perpetuate the conservation corps camp in Boiceville and the work of constructing wooden barracks and other buildings will be commenced within the next few days. A previous order to break camp in December was succeeded last week by official notice that No. 2 is to be "put under wood," and further proof of the good news already reposes at the headquarters tent in the shape of an elaborate and comprehensive set of blue prints, prepared at the Quartermaster Corps office of the Second Corps Area on September 20.

Present plans call for 11 units of frame construction, including several barracks with accommodations for 42 men each, a combined mess hall and kitchen officers' quarters, assembly hall, administration building and lavatory. Barracks will be 20x10x14 feet and will contain two large log burning heaters. Buildings will be made snug and ship-shape for come-what-may in the way of winter weather, and fortunate indeed are those lads who have prepared to again cast their lot with Uncle Sam's woodland army, for they shall enjoy full protection against the elements plus adequate sustenance and good cheer aplenty in the way of all creature comforts. An army officer will be on the spot early this week to get things going and local men will find opportunity for employment as the building campaign gradually strikes its stride. Happy days!

Re-enrollment Progresses

Discharge and re-enrollment have been uppermost in the minds of the men of the 215th Company for the past several days and there has been a deal of going and coming, by way of furloughs and general release.

U. S. army men who received their discharge last Saturday were as follows: Newton Craft, Saugerties; Benjamin Vandervlyn, Kingston R. F. D.; Louis Auchmoody, Rosendale; Joseph Misael, Glasco; John Pirigly, Kingston Route 4; Julius Szalay, Woodstock, and Frank Turco and Michael Veitri of Glasco. Earlier in the week 27 men left for their homes in New York city. New enlistments are coming in and it is expected that full company strength will be recruited by October 15, which is the time limit set for re-enrollment and the enlistment of new members. A total of 75,000 men will be selected for the first group of recruits called to bring the strength of C. C. C. companies up to full strength and this first contingent will begin to get their "summons" today. The number of new men called will include only those to replace men sent home at the end of the initial "hitch" but also enough to replace the "wastage" in strength resulting from various causes during the period September 30-October 15.

Only where it is deemed for the good of the service will men of one outfit be permitted to enroll in other companies. There has been a great activity on the part of governors and congressmen to have units located in their states and districts. The economic and social importance of the conservation corps camp to a community is now generally recognized. Evidence of this growing spirit of appreciation and cooperation is seen right here in northern Ulster, where churches and other local organizations vie with one another in attracting the boys to their religious and social gatherings, while business men and the public in general are warming up to the "forestry stunt" in a manner that is encouraging to behold.

About The Folks

The permanent kitchen detail, the personnel of which may be likened unto one big congenial family, are lamenting the loss, through discharge, of Frank Drangulis, who left Saturday night for his home in Brooklyn. Frank, who is a member of the 102nd Medical detachment, 27th Division, of the National Guard, not only has fulfilled his duties as a second cook most satisfactorily but has also endeared himself to his comrades of the kitchen detail and members of the company generally.

Hasbrouck Christians, C. C. C. clerk in the office of Conservation Superintendent Ralph Craner, whose handsome phiz since the birth of a daughter three weeks ago has worn a "smile that won't come off," looks still happier, if possible, since the arrival at their home in Krumville of his better half and bouncing progeny from New York city where the blessed event took place.

Grant Lunny, who has been orderly to Major George W. Easterday, is one of the men who elected not to re-enroll and he is leaving for his home in New York city. Grant is succeeded by Tony Mancuso, the boxer, who by virtue of his athletic prowess should also qualify as a good bouncer in case it ever becomes necessary to stage a "bum's rush" from the environs of the major's tent.

A proceeding quite unlikely in view of the excellent deportment of all hands at the big camp. Tony, up to the last few days was quite undecided as to his course of action on September 30, and the problem made him so jittery that he could not sleep at all one night. Then, after listening to a dandy talk by 1st Lt. Otto Wienecke, second in command at the camp, everything cleared up quick as that, and now he is tickled pink over the bright prospects for life at No. 2 this coming winter. Atta boy, Tony!

Odd and Ends

Down in the new pump house on the east bank of the Esopus Creek there is stabled a brand new Century 1 1/2 H. P. electric pump, a sturdy little giant which pushes chlorinated creek water up into the elevated wooden tank on the second level of the grounds. Electricity replaces gasoline in this case, the old put-put engine having been a source of so much bother that a change was made in the interests of efficiency and economy. Pump was connected up with the Central Hudson power line with 1,500 feet of No. 8 wiring installed by William C. Weyman of Phoenicia. Over in the big sand lot between the creek and camp proper, were spread out scores of O. D. blankets, storing up vitamins in the bright October sunlight of a perfect autumn day. Blankets being aired thusly had been used, four to a man, by members recently discharged. Pretty good stunt, this.

The incinerator, also off the beaten path, was being tended by one man, whose job it was to keep a good hot wood fire under the steel drums used for destroying the liquid kitchen waste. The slops treated in this manner gradually boil away, leaving a negligible residue.

A new system in effect in the kitchen shack stipulates that the amount of provisions used in preparing each item of the meal be set down on the official menu sheets. Thus, for Saturday's luncheon, 40 lbs. of beef and five dozen onions went into the fried steak with onions; 50 lbs. of spuds were served up, mashed; 15 lbs. of carrots were creamed; four big cans of stringed beans, a half dozen pickles and a half dozen pickles comprised the salad item; eight pounds of coffee were brewed for drink and six 10-lb. cans of apricots formed the dessert.

A special treat of a barrel of beer was donated by William Gabenian, proprietor of the canteen, as a farewell gesture in honor of the boys who on Saturday were leaving the ranks of the conservation army.

Note, if you please, the tent in the rear of the kitchen shack, affording protection for the lads who saw the wood, peep the spuds and boil the water. Always something new and worth while.

By the way, a contributed item to this column reveals the hard luck of Mess Sergeant Kunert and Supply Officer Argo on the occasion of the Tuesday night's dance in Ashokan. It appears that these handsome Lovers were to be called for after the hop but their conveyance failed to show up at the appointed time, whereupon the guardians of prudence and equipment resorted to chugging passing motorists, but to no avail. Finally the driver of a night-owl cauliflower truck, bound for Delaware county, took compassion on the poor wayfarers and gave them a lift to Boiceville, which happy home they reached before Honest John McKelvey's cock began to crow and whilst reveille was not yet.

Recreational and So Forth.

The boys report having had a grand time at the party thrown for them in the community church hall on the west side of the reservoir. About 80 of them attended this affair and they had all the ice cream and cake they could hold. Twenty of the lads went to church there last Sunday, and on the whole they are loud in their praise of the cordiality and generosity exhibited by the west side folks in their behalf. A basketball team has been organized with Lewis Glenn of Clintondale as captain. Director Terry is trying to get the hall at Shokan for practice and matched games in this sport. The plan to have games at Shokan, if it materializes, should be the means of further cementing the bond of good fellowship which exists between the woodsmen and the people of the town of Olive. It is only a little over three miles from Camp No. 2 to Shokan, the hub of the reservoir section, so why not? Let's go.

What with this and that, the camp was not exactly seething with humanity Saturday morning. In addition to the large number of absentees on furlough and the diminished company strength through discharge, there were about 50 woodsmen out on the job in the forests of Shandaken. All summer the scouts have been hunting grey moths eggs, and now there is a new crop of these egg masses to be located and destroyed.

In "Three Ring" Political Fight

New York's "three ring" political circus is open in full blast, the entry of Joseph V. McKee as independent candidate for mayor, drawing new recruits from the Tammany Tiger whose candidate, Mayor John P. O'Brien, already was beset by Fiorello LaGuardia, the fusionist candidate.

—fresh eggs for winter destruction, as it were. Up at Pine Hill a crew of ten woodsmen in charge of Foreman Bentley and Thompson are constructing a ski trail to the Bellesyre forest ranger's post. The work, which is under the general supervision of Ranger Charles Andrews of Big Indian, will include widening the trail and banking it up where necessary, a series of operations which eventually will make it possible for automobiles to negotiate the steep hill. The skiing phase of the project will be for the benefit of the general public.

Outside Information

According to "Happy Days," the New York City men in the C. C. C. have gained a pound more than the fellows from other towns and the sticks. Perhaps there was more room for the increase in avoidance. Study in extreme is found in a news item from Co. 992, at Gotta-ville, Calif., where the men returned to camp with frostbitten hands after shoveling snowdrifts off a road only 16 miles from their base where the thermometer registered 90 degrees when they left at 8 o'clock in the morning. And did you know that the red-coated mounties of the Northwest will be but somber birds of plumage come winter, in comparison with our Civies? The lads on their trips to Kingston will dazzle the eyes of stolid citizens of Dutch burgher descent, what with their red, green, blue and gray lumbermen's jackets, logger's caps with fur-lined ear tabs, sporty windbreakers—everything in color, and how. Sartorial elegance personified. The girls will love it.

Illustrative of the important part which soil erosion control plays in the C. C. C. scheme of things is the report that ten million young trees, principally black locust with some willows and cottonwoods, will be planted in Iowa to make permanent the building of 17,000 dams on 2,000 farms to halt erosion and conserve top soil. Soil erosion is said to have become increasingly alarming to Iowa farmers. . . . There's the interesting case of Bud Boden of Co. 993, Hall's Flat, Calif. Two years ago Boden was a prodigy in the imperial Cossack riding team. He has raced on the Indianapolis and Daytona Beach tracks and appeared in the Barrymores' picture "Rasputin and the Empress." Today, Bud is driving trucks in the C. C. C. camp—and likes it. . . . Add toolroom philosophy: "There's a lot of sweat in them thar tools," said the warehouse detail of Co. 985, Santa Barbara National Forest, as they finished branding and painting 1,648 axes, 1,926 shovels and a great number of brush hooks, rakes, mattocks, picks and other implements of honest woodmen's toil.—And also, if the truth were known, a lot of good hardened sinews and healthy sun-bronzed physiques, as well. And that's something worth while, eh?

ALBANY AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH ACTIVITIES

There was an unusually large congregation at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday, beginning the go-to-church period which is being observed by Baptist churches throughout the country. A new order of service has been inaugurated for the morning worship.

The Women's Missionary Society will hold its regular monthly meeting on Friday afternoon, October 6, at three o'clock, in the church parlors. Mrs. W. E. Simmons and Mrs. F. B. Matthews are the hostesses. The program is as follows: Devotions, Mrs. E. P. Snyder. Round table, "If I Lived in Africa," given by Mrs. G. C. Leach; Mrs. Vernon Van Nostrand, Mrs. N. J. Swiford, Mrs. N. H. Fuller, Mrs. Sherwood Leach. Violin solo, Mrs. Florence W. Cumberley.

On Friday evening, October 6, at 8:30 o'clock, a Christian Endeavor and young people's banquet will be held at the church. This promises to be a very large and interesting affair. The principal speaker will be Charles Gustafson, formerly president of the Hudson County (N. J.) C. E. Union, and Robert Hawley will sing.

The Ladies' Aid Society is planning to give a turkey supper on Friday, October 13, and already committees are at work completing the arrangements.

Next Sunday morning the pastor, the Rev. A. S. Cole, will preach on the topic, "Where is God?" The subject of the evening sermon will be, "The Man With a Measuring Line." This is one of a series of evening sermons on "The Visions of Zechariah."

4-H Member Wins State Recognition

George Schneider, St. Remy, has received the highest standing in the Central New York State 4-H Official Egg Laying Contest at Horseheads, New York. At the end of the 51st week of the contest his pen of eight single comb White Leghorns stood highest with a record of 1,319 eggs and 1,335.55 points for the 51 weeks. Two hens from George's pen were the two highest scoring individual birds in the contest and one, the fifth. The hen with the highest standing laid 246 eggs with 256.50 points, the hen with second standing laid 247 eggs and 284.95 points. Third standing went to Gerald Leasure, Tioga county, with 222 eggs and 275.1 points. George's pen was 119.29 points ahead of the second high pen. The second place was won by James P. Suter, Delaware county, whose pen had laid 1,256 eggs and had earned 1,316.75 points. The Hawley Brothers of Batavia, Oneida county, stood third with 1,269 eggs and 1,182.49 points.

Winning in this contest is an outstanding achievement for an Ulster County 4-H Club member. George's pen standing is much higher than that for the winning pen in last year's contest, as his pen laid 1,319 eggs with 1,335.55 points as compared with 1,044 eggs and 1,149 points for the high pen last year. His two high individual hens each scored more points than the two high individual hens last year also. George's stock was obtained from Ulster County Poultry Breeder's Association in comparison with the best adult breeders in the country in a similar contest conducted at Horseheads. George's pen average would have stood second high among these breeders.

George will be awarded two handsome trophies by the Tioga Empire Feed Mills, Inc., of Waverly, New York for his high record pen, and his record individual bird. These awards will be made at the Annual 4-H Poultry Banquet in Ithaca, at the time of the State Poultry Judging Contest in November.

Gordon Bolce, Lake Katrine, finished the contest with ninth place in pen standing and tenth on an individual bird standing. His pen of single Comb White Leghorns laid 973 eggs with 940.55 points.

Each year pens of eight hens each are entered in the 4-H Official Egg Laying Contest at Horseheads, where they are kept from October first until the last week in September the following year. Records are kept and scoring made on a point basis. Eggs weighing 24 ounces per dozen are given one point per egg. Any weighing less than 24 ounces per dozen receive less than one point per egg and those weighing more than 24 ounces are scored more than one point per egg. Therefore both number of eggs and weight of eggs are considered in figuring the standing of pens and individual birds.

George Schneider, St. Remy, Franklin Kelder, Accord, and Joseph O'Brien, Sexton have entered the 1933-34 Contest.

Maryemma Christiana attended her sister and wore a green crepe frock with a corsage of pink butterfly roses. Robert Winkky of Rifton served as best man. Tips on CONTRACT

Good Slam Hangers—
By TOM O'NEIL

Good slams are necessary for adequate bidding of grand slams. While there are no trump conventions demonstrated their worth in the Schuch trophy matches in London, possession of all the aces by the partnership with the big hands does not in itself insure taking all the tricks.

It is necessary either that the strong suit of one or the other of the contracting sides be extra powerful or that each have good support for the other's strong suit.

Having had a run of luck in a club rubber game in New York, Morris A. Huse purposely pressed it a little in trying a grand slam in no trump and was set one through lack of good mutual support in suits. Here was the hand:

Huse, holding the South cards, opened the auction with one spade. West and East did nothing but pass. North offered two clubs. South jumped to four no trump, having two aces and the kings of two bid suits. North was not enthusiastic because of the singleton spade and the hiatus in club honors, but made the mandatory response of five no trump, showing the other two aces. South took the contract forthwith to seven no trump.

West opened the ten of diamonds, which was let run to the queen. The king of clubs was led, followed by a finesse of the nine spot, which lost to East's queen. The declarer took every other trick with the aid of a lead of the heart queen, which East covered. It made no difference whether there was a cover.

Kibitzers Talk It Over

The kibitzers got busy and decided that there was no way to make seven no trump. A backward finesse would succeed in clubs, but to make it the first diamond trick would have to be taken in dummy, knocking out the ace reentry, and there would be no way to get back into dummy to catch the club queen without losing a trick.

Then it was noted that a grand slam could have been made in clubs by means of the backward finesse, a ruff of spade furnishing entries enough.

"I thought of doubling the seven no trump," said West.

"I wish I had bid seven clubs and you had doubled," rejoined Huse. "I would have finessed your partners, playing on the assumption that you were doubling on partner's possibilities."

The Argument

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"I'd better be the teacher," growled Jelly Bear. "I can give lessons in how to know poisonous berries so they won't be eaten by mistake. I can show how to stand up and snuff the passing breezes and tell if any enemies are around."

"You wouldn't be much of a teacher," said Mr. Quacko Duck, "considering you sleep all winter."

"But just think how my pupils would adore me," grinned Jelly Bear.

"We wouldn't want to spend much time teaching this fall," Honey Bear growled softly. "We want to eat and gather fat and strength for our winter sleep."

"That's true," agreed Jelly Bear, "but we could have time out for meals."

"I doubt if you would be the best choice for the teacher," said Willy Nilly, "as you would spend so little time teaching."

"What about you, Willy Nilly?" barked Rip, the Dog.

"I have too much to do," said Willy Nilly. "My chores are neglected as it is."

"I'll be the teacher, cock-a-doodle-do," growled Top Notch.

"I'll be the teacher, quack, quack," said Mr. Quacko Duck.

"I'll be the teacher, caw, caw," said Christopher Columbus Crow.

"School will be held in my shed," shouted Top Notch.

"It will be under the pine tree," said Christopher.

"It will be down at the pond," said Mr. Quacko.

"None of the pupils will know where to go," said Willy Nilly.

"We'd better have the school on my porch. I have an idea."

Living Without Food
Scientists believe that the length of time during which a man may live without food depends on height, weight and age. The heavier of two men will produce more heat and hence probably live the longer, other things being equal. Similarly, a tall man will live longer than a short man, assuming that both are of normal weight for their height.

TRY before you BUY When it comes to heating improvements

Better even than the experiences of present users of gas heating, is your own experience in your own home. You may have this assurance too before you need purchase automatic gas heating equipment. A simple automatic burner will be installed in your furnace for an entire heating season on a trial basis, and the cost for fuel will be guaranteed in advance in writing. What could be fairer than that? Would you be wise to buy anything at all in the way of new heating equipment before you try GAS, the only completely automatic fuel?

Kingston Hospital Auxiliary Reports

The annual meeting of the Auxiliary of Kingston Hospital was held on September 24 and the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. Frederick Snyder; first vice president, Mrs. Thomas J. Hickey; second vice president, Mrs. George A. Ross; secretary, Mrs. Chester B. Van Gaasbeck; treasurer, Mrs. Harold Rakov.

Following is the annual report of the secretary:

The Auxiliary of Kingston Hospital had eight meetings during the year followed by a social half hour at which time tea was served by the student nurses. Sometimes a bit of entertainment was enjoyed. At one meeting Mrs. George Ross gave an interesting travel talk and Mrs. Arthur Wicks favored with two vocal solos. At another time the student nurses gave an amusing skit and musical selections.

We held our annual tea dance Thanksgiving Day which was a success socially and financially. The Auxiliary donated money at Thanksgiving and at Christmas time to the wards for holiday cheer. The Christmas decorations were in charge of Mrs. George Ross, and she and the Girl Scouts hung wreaths and trimmings and placed five Christmas trees about the hospital.

The Good Cheer Committee has solicited gifts for the patients and has visited the wards with flowers for the sick, and fruit and books for the convalescents. Miss Lillian Bonesteel is in charge of this work.

The auxiliary donated $40 to the June graduating class to help defray the expenses of their June dance. This money is to be raised by small card parties held at various homes.

The sewing committee in complete charge of Mrs. Arthur Wicks has been most active this year and much work has been completed as will be noticed by her report. The Auxiliary deeply appreciates the efforts of all societies and individuals who have served this year and sincerely thanks them at this time.

It is the duty of the auxiliary to find out what is needed in our hospital and to buy, make or beg it, that the wants of our institution may be properly supplied and fittingly furnished and we ask no reward except that which comes from a consciousness of a good work well done.

Respectfully submitted,
NAOMI VAN GAASBECK,
Secretary.

Jet "Jells" in a New Mode

New York—"What does one do with jet? I've a lot in my attic," a correspondent wrote me recently. "One keeps it," I answered. "It is sure to come back sooner or later than one might have supposed. We might have expected it, with all this turning back to those getting to be tiresome $6's and $6's."

Of course everyone knows that jet and onyx jewelry have been coming back too, and that a light sprinkling of spangles has already showered down upon our defenseless backs, so why not jet. Fortunately we are not weighted down with it as were the good ladies of the glamorous era, but there is a bit of jet introduced just for auld laige syne. Today's model shows it on the girdle which is one way of attracting attention to your progress with the waist program.

What a lot of black clothes are being worn. Some shiny, satiny ones and others very dull, and all ribbed and rich looking, oppressive really. With such clothes, one selects suede shoes or shoes which combine kid and suede, and one wears antelope hats, if not velvet ones, richly clasped of course.

The portrait brooch is back, right where it was, centre front, which brings to mind that heavy jewelry is what fashion demands. The idea is still to look as affluent as possible to make every thing one wears count. Muffs are very large and impressive, even though they are not always fur. One may carry a fabric muff, if it is fur trimmed shirred or pleated. Gloves are still of great decorative value and frequently made of the fabric which makes the gown. For evening, flowers are charmingly worn, high on the bosom usually and running, in one important collection to natural looking red and pink roses and gardenias.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Formal gowns are sometimes shorter at the front than at the back, the hemline at the front often above the ankles, which at the back it reaches the floor or trails.

This short line at the front sometimes appears in a square cut-out line and again adopts a gracefully curving expression, the length at the back attained gradually.

BLACK JET'S RE-BIRTH

(Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild)

A black satin frock for town wear, suggested by a band of black broad-trimmed with long jet neckline and again adopts a gracefully curving expression, the length at the back attained gradually.

If Not Sleeves, Why Not a Cape?

Ye old capelet dress, sponsored by Molyneux, which is back into circulation this fall, is genuinely interpreted as a "compromise" fashion that is needed for women who are apt to fight shy of the sleeved dinner dress.

The elbow length of the capelet, and the heavy petal border that defines its length, give it a new aspect, particularly in keeping with the new intention to divert trimming interest on the arms, well below the shoulders.

The Cape—Dignified, Dramatic, Romantic

Capes are a fashion which make grace of carriage of essential importance, but now that women have mastered the trained evening gown by adopting a leisurely tread, they may go a bit further and take the swinging gait which has rhythm.

Molyneux does a cape with fulness at the sides which is almost proof against an ungraceful effect, since it is all set with fulness at the sides. Augustabernard sponsors a longer, wider and fuller silhouette, the cape with a swing to it.

Talks to parents

Wolf! Wolf!

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

To live in a house with a person who always is ailing is trying to anyone, but for children to be possessed of a mother chronically complaining of illness is a real tragedy.

When the mother is really ill it is a misfortune, and though the children are to be pitied, it may be better fitted to meet life for the experience. And an invalid can be the center and moving spirit of a house in spite of her handicap. Often a sick room is the source of strength and joy to all who enter it.

But for one genuine case of invalidism there are hundreds of others which are simply the result of self-pity and egotism. There are mothers who seek attention through their minor ailments, mothers who always are tired and half ill when a child asks for something. Some are subject to sick headaches when there is a crisis in the family, others use their nerves as an excuse.

There even are such acute cases as mothers who take to their beds and stay there for protracted periods of time, complaining of symptoms which could easily be cured by a vital interest in life.

The effect on the children varies. Some grow callous and indifferent not only to their mother's troubles, but to illness in general. Their wells of sympathy are exhausted before they have any real contact with life, and eventually they are skeptical and hard.

Some take it more philosophical and as they grow older discount all their mother's sickness as imaginary, and treat it with indifference and contempt. The object of their scorn is not in an enviable position.

If ever she is really ill she is in the predicament of the boy who called "Wolf! Wolf!" too often. She has lost by her own efforts the very thing she wanted—the center of the stage.

ONE BLACK DRESS IS FOUND ENOUGH

Blessed are ye who have one good black silk dress and half a dozen sets of collars and cuffs, six handbags, two hats, three pairs of shoes and two pairs of gloves with detached cuffs. With a rounded or V-neck for the dress, any number of diversified collars—size, shape and color—may be applied, being careful to choose the correct handbag, gloves, cuffs, shoes and purse.

With the hats, shoes and gloves black and white, or perhaps one set in a brown, beige or a medium green, you can do wonders with constructing a wardrobe suitable for all occasions.

One evening gown, with two or three different jackets, accomplishes miracles and makes one realize that originality and ingenuity are having a big inning.

New Fall Coats Are Rich in Elaborate Fur Trim

The new coats shown in early fall displays are richly trimmed with fur, many of them having both collars and upper sleeve accents of silver, stone or blue fox, astrakhan or Persian lamb. Their silhouettes are generally almost straight, while their hemlines are from 7 to 11 inches from the ground.

The frocks shown with them are designed of soft wools or pebbled crepes with simple bodies, natural waistlines and slender skirts. Black, red, brown and deep green are the favorite hues for early fall.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS—SOUNDS

By NORMAN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Free-lance actors of Hollywood—the players who get paid only when they work—are getting uneasy as they watch the big studios expand their contract lists.

The search for "new talent" that Hollywood always talks about has gathered momentum as studios vie in signing players, and the pay-as-you-work-but-give-me-work group "views it with alarm."

When a studio has a large contract list the expectation naturally is that it is going to use those people, who would be paid anyway, rather than hire outsiders. It doesn't always work out that way. In fact, one of Hollywood's idiosyncrasies has been its practice of ignoring contract people and insisting on expensive outsiders. But with smaller contract groups, containing a larger assortment of talent, this habit might be forgotten.

'Names' Held An Asset

Producers for some time have been acting on the theory that "names" sprinkled liberally throughout a cast are an asset. The surplus "names" not only enhance box-office strength, but are a form of insurance against production lags.

It costs a studio money for each minute a star is before the camera, and seldom does the star appear alone in a scene. The quality of the supporting players is important. The star might be better perfect in his lines, give a splendid performance, but if a cheap actor in the background muffs his bit, the scene has to be done again. So it pays, in more ways than one, to get competent actors for minor roles.

Why They're Worried

If the studios have such actors under contract, and moreover, make it a regular practice to interchange them freely on loans, it would follow that the free-lance's chance to get his finger in the pie is lessened considerably.

Except for stars, players nowadays often find themselves important in one film and subordinate in the next.

Laura Hope Crews dominated "The Silver Cord," but in "Blind Adventure" she had a one-act role. Frances Dee and Joel McCrea, featured leads, have relatively short parts in "One Man's Journey." Jack LaRue and Nils Asther in other features have roles that in length, at least, are not impressive.

Such instances, from one studio, illustrate a trend that gives the free-lance something to think about.

At The Theatres

Today.

Kingston: "Goodbye Again." Light comedy with Warren William doing something new as a comedian. Mr. William, in this bedroom farce, is an author who writes passionate love tales for the morose to eat up. He is helped along by his secretary, played by Joan Blondell. Of course another old sweetheart of his, played by Genevieve Tobin, appears on the scene, and although married, she decides the author needs some inspiration from her. There are numerous laughs in this talkie, and several very laughable situations. Helen Chandler, Wallace Ford and Hugh Herbert are also in the cast.

Orpheum: "Double Harness" and "King of Jazz." William Powell and Ann Harding are splendid in this domestic story of a wife who finds her husband is no longer in love with her. How she remedies the situation is grand entertainment. Lillian Bond is also in the cast. "King of Jazz" is a Paul Whiteman song fest, with his famous band, helped along by many artists, and it is a first class melody entertainment.

Broadway: "Turn Back the Clock." Lee Tracy, Mae Clarke, George Barbier, and Otto Kruger head the cast in this play of a small town man who has the chance to live his life over again. The lines and methods of handling this novel plot are exceptionally good, for as the man starts back through the years, he knows what is going to happen in the future. Imagination runs riot in this talkie, and the story is so well handled and skillfully directed that it rates as enjoyable entertainment. Lee Tracy, in the starring role, does good work.

Tomorrow.

Kingston: "Beauty For Sale." Beauty shop operators, rich young men, parties, dances, and all those essentials to a modern story are to be found in this talkie of a pretty girl and how she gets along in life. Madge Evans, Phillips Holmes, Alice Brady, Una Merkel, Otto Kruger and May Robson are to be found in the cast. A lavish picture with a fair amount of comedy and romance blended into the seriousness of the plot.

Orpheum: "Kiss Before the Mirror" and "Hold 'Em Jail." A double feature offering, the first a thriller in which a man kills his wife for being unfaithful, the second offers Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in another of their crazy performances. A diversified program, the first a tragedy, the second a laughable comedy skit with two of the screen's funniest comedians.

Broadway: Same.

HOW TO FIND BUSHELS OF CORN, WHEAT AND OATS IN CRIB.

The following rules are from the Purdue university agricultural experiment station: Oats come under the classification of "grain and shelled corn." Where optional figures are offered, the exact figure depends upon the judgment of persons familiar with the condition of the product measured.

To find the number of bushels of grain or shelled corn in a bin, multiply the length by the width by the depth (all in feet) and divide by 128 or multiply by .0078.

To find the number of bushels of ear corn in a crib, multiply the length by the width by the average depth (all in feet) and divide by 2 to 2 1/2, depending on the quality and condition of the corn. If the crib is round, square the diameter of the crib, and multiply by the average depth of the corn (all in feet), then multiply by .7854, and divide by 2 to 2 1/2 or multiply by from 2 to 4.

How "Whoopie" Started in Its Modern Meaning

Started in Montreal and caught up by the American press, there flourishes a lively discussion of "whoopie," the word.

Is it slang? Not at all, the papers declare, pointing out that the good old word was more than three centuries ago by Massinger and Dekker in their play "The Virgin Martyr," which contains the line, "Nay, lady, for my part, I'll cry whoopie."

Well, so it was. That very line is quoted in the Standard Dictionary. But no one in those ancient days ever spoke of "making whoopie," and the same authority defines it as originally "a cry of exultation or urging"—"a little like our modern 'wow' or 'atta-he,' we assume, but, nevertheless, quite conventional. Reading on, however, we find it recognized as slang in its secondary meaning, and when you speak of "making whoopie" you can no longer claim to be keeping within the bounds of Seventeenth-century English.

Lexicographers are still wondering how the word got to America, but it seems clear that cowboys were the first to use it here, and that circus people took it up. But even then it remained for New York to transform "whoopie" into a noun and add it to our vocabulary of alcoholic slang.—Literary Digest.

How Smoke Screens Are Laid

There are two distinct types of smoke apparatus which have been developed for airplanes. The smoke material used in both types is titanium tetrachloride. One method of generating smoke is known as the "curtain type" of apparatus, in which the smoke material is discharged from the plane toward the rear at the same velocity as the forward speed of the plane. This results in the formation of large liquid drops at approximately the altitude of the plane. As these drops fall toward the earth, they slowly evaporate and react with the moisture of the air to form a dense white smoke, which presents the appearance of a falling curtain. A plane of the Martin bomber type can lay a curtain approximately 400 feet high.

How Picture Frames Gained Favor

Picture frames are of comparatively modern origin. There is no record of their existence earlier than the Sixteenth century. Originally frames were made of wood or composition overlaid on wood. The introduction in the Seventeenth century of larger sheets of glass gave the art of framing great impetus and in the Eighteenth century the increased demand led to the invention of a composition which could be readily molded into various patterns.

How Moth Fertilizes Yucca

The yucca-moth emerges at the time of opening of the flowers, which frequently remain open only for a single night. The female moth rolls together a ball of pollen, flies to another flower, lays four or five eggs in the pistil and inserts the pollen mass in the opening thus formed. Each larva, on hatching from the egg, requires about 20 seeds of the yucca plant as food. As the plant produces some 200 seeds, this leaves about 180 seeds over to perpetuate the plant. The yucca can be fertilized by no other insect.

How Term "Red Tape" Originated

During the Eighteenth century it was the custom to tie up legal documents in red tape. Sydney Smith, an eminent writer and clergyman of the time, popularized the term in a satirical sense by humorously suggesting that the numerous and lengthy delays attached to all government transactions were due to the everlasting tying and untying of red tape on documents and dispatch cases.

How Long Toys Have Been Used

The doll is the oldest toy known and has been found among practically all nations from the remotest antiquity. A remarkable collection of dolls has been made by Edward Lott of London, of which the oldest is a doll 4,000 years old, found in an Egyptian tomb.

How Peanuts Grow

The peanut is a tropical plant of the bean family, of erect habit, with hairy stems and bright yellow flowers, whose peduncles bend after fertilization and push the pods into the ground, where they ripen.

Canada's Most Northerly City

Prince Rupert is the most northerly city of any size in Canada. With a population of about 7,000 it is built on a circle of hills formed of hard rock. Its far stores are the first sight of the great fur industry of the northland as the traveler heads for Alaska.

Cheating the Devil

Among the many religious ceremonies held in Tibet each year, the most amusing one is "Driving out the Demon." It is a dice-throwing contest between two men, one dressed as the Grand Lama and the other as the Demon. As the Demon's victory would portend disaster to the country, the "Grand Lama" plays safe—with loaded dice.—Collier's Weekly.

Mosquito Sticks to Birthplace

Although some species of mosquito fly for considerable distances, most of them spend their whole lives close to their place of birth. Because of this it is quite possible that limited areas may be freed from the pest without the fear of their being replaced by migrants from other areas still infested.

Ulster County Bar In Tribute To Late Judge Clearwater

years he served courageously as district attorney when crime had been rampant to insensitively punish it. David Dudley Field recognized his highly competent service and invited him to collaborate in the preparation of the state's first Penal Code. For 3 years he served as county judge with such distinction that Governor Black appointed him supreme court justice of this district to succeed the famous Alton B. Parker. After a year of impeccable service Judge Clearwater returned to the bar to attract large business responsibilities and to become its leader.

He was interested in legal affairs generally and in elevating the tendencies so that the bar association of the state chose him as its president.

He was possessed of unusual social tendencies. He served as vice president of the Huguenot Society of America, president of the Holland Society, president of the St. Nicholas Societies of New York and found great satisfaction in the society of his Masonic brethren, serving on the staff of the grand master.

He took particular pride in his Dutch and French Huguenot ancestry and left many evidences of it in addresses and tablets.

He was quite the most notable of the collectors in the United States of early colonial silver.

No adequate summary is fitting on this occasion of his long and brilliant career as a public citizen nor of his exemplary, laborious, honorable and useful private life. One of his passions was his interest in the Ulster County Bar. He served its association as president for five years. He loved his fellow members and wore the crown of sorrows as one and another of them passed away.

Very able, cultured, broadly educated, fit for any position of responsibility in the country, he was beside very human. What Mr. Justice Holmes has said of another is very applicable to Judge Clearwater.

Over the loss of so great a man and member, the Ulster County Bar bows in unusual sorrow and regret. Be it further Resolved, that we hereby extend our very sincere sympathy to Mrs. Clearwater and his family in their great bereavement.

G. D. B. HASBROUCK,
JOHN T. LOUGHRAN,
FREDERICK G. TRAVER,
PHILIP ELTING,
VIRGIL B. VAN WAGONEN.

At the conclusion of the reading of the resolution Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck paid the following personal tribute to Judge Clearwater.

The dark cloud of sorrow in the sense of a great personal loss has fallen upon every member of the Bar of Ulster County, and upon many members of the profession throughout the state and nation over the passing of the dean and leader of our bar and over many of our judges from the Chief Justice and an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court and the Chief Justice and his associates of the Court of Appeals and other judicial officers of our state, who had the fortune to know Alphonso T. Clearwater. I realize the limitations of this statement when I say that the same sense of sorrow has fallen like a pall over our city and county and a territorial expanse far wider than such contracted area. As a fellow citizen he was respected, admired and beloved.

It is perhaps, particularly fitting, though I would hide my great sense of loss, that I should loose the tongue that falters, in an attempt to set the aura on his brow. Of all the members of the bar I see before me, I am the first who knew him, who came under the magic of his wand. I entered his office as his clerk early in 1882 and shortly after was admitted to the bar and served him for nearly a year and a half in that capacity.

Admitted to the bar in 1871 he formed in 1872 a partnership with John E. Van Etten, one of the leaders of our bar. He became and remained ill for a long time before he fully recovered and the work of a large law practice was entrusted to the young lawyer. The great responsibility that then fell upon him he met with an unusual aptitude for the law with great industry and all the confidence and exuberance of youth. Great success at the bar at that early age attended him.

Crime in those days was rife in the county and the public looked upon him as qualified to cope with it and the electorate chose him at 29 for district attorney of the county. He soon put a check on that unruly element that thronged the docks at Rondout and the industries along the river front and when I entered his office the halter had been so drawn, that no criminal had a poor opinion of the law. He was in the heyday of his power, militant, well equipped, resourceful. He let no guilty man escape. He was inexorable in pursuit. He was satisfied only when the punishment fitted the crime, but compassionate when youth, woman or the lack of intention was a factor in the equation of justice. At the end of his third term he had attracted perhaps the largest practice in the county.

When the ermine fell from the shoulders of Judge Kenyon, it fell from the soul of a man as spotless as itself. In Kenyon's place Alphonso T. Clearwater was elected county judge. He served from 1896 until January 1898 with honor and credit. He was then appointed by Governor Black a justice of the supreme court of this district to succeed the Honorable Alton B. Parker, who was elected chief judge of the court of appeals. Judge Clearwater filled the great office to which he was chosen admirably. He was equipped with his long experience at the bar and his service on the county bench beyond any man I knew for the great opportunity for public service found in that great court of original jurisdiction. His clear, logical judgments betrayed all the arduous steps which led to the great place. But chance, the election, mysterious

State had other work for him to do and called him to the field in which he was and remained facile princeps. His place in the legal forum of the state rarely met its equal. I had, as a deputy attorney general of the state, the opportunity of knowing all the great lawyers of the state. One could count his equals in the state on the fingers of one hand. But the occasion here will be lost unless we turn to the philosophy of his life and read the lesson it teaches.

Possessed of a dramatic personality, a sonorous voice, a fine literary style, he filled the public stage. He was an admirable, I might say beautiful, public speaker. From a literary standpoint he was a fine writer. He made many effective and entertaining addresses. He wrote part of the history of the Ulster County Bar and the public and on various legal, public and historical subjects. Once I asked where he got his beautiful English style. He answered, "My teacher, John Norton Pomeroy urged me to read Addison." His style was that of that great master. But I must hasten to the goal. Though Clearwater has passed the 55th milestone of life he wanted to live. He would not sit down and say, "The night bath come. It is no longer day."

Up to the very minute of his death he held firmly to the will to live. As a boy he wished to learn and know. He studied assiduously. As an adult without any other help than the Kingston Academy afforded, he read and acquired. Into his manhood he held fast in his quest for greater knowledge. He read history and studied and digested it. He read the great masters of literature, the great poets, the great philosophers. He had the will to know and he would not be balked. He knew Cicero, Demosthenes, Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, Plutarch and Xenophon. Seneca, Epictetus. He knew the bypaths and the main avenues wherein are lodged the diamonds of the literary past only known and found by those who have the will to dig. He willed himself into the leadership of his community, into the leadership of his profession, into dominance in the councils of his party, into the good graces and hearts of his friends. He would not be denied anything he thought was right if it could be obtained by devotion to the end.

I have said he wanted to live, that he willed to live. He craved the praise and the approbation of his fellow citizens. He willed that posterity should remember him. He placed recently two beautiful tablets, one in the Huguenot church at New Paltz and one on the front of the First Dutch Church at Kingston, commemorating Washington's visit to the city and the fact that he was chairman of the committee to celebrate the bicentennial of the birth of Washington.

This desire to be remembered by coming generations afforded much of the spur that led the untiring work he did for the love and remembrance of his brothers at the bar and the people of his beloved county and city has the potency to penetrate the curtain that hides the future from the past, then he has our assurance in the lines of Shelley:

"For love and friendship and delight There is no death, no change."

What I have admired in Judge Clearwater most was his early struggle. He was not born, as it is said to the purple. He was well born. But he had to work to secure an education. The work that constituted his real stepping stone to the success of his life was his clerkship in the dry goods store of James O. Merritt. There he learned of the fruit that hangs on industry. There he impressed his employer so much that when he came to the bar he was his trusted attorney and advisor. This life constitutes a thrilling example for every youth that has the ambition to succeed. Success will not deny industry, capacity, courage and honor.

In seconding the adoption of the resolution Senator Charles W. Walton spoke as follows:

Honorable and Members of the Bar:

It is not without a feeling of deep emotion that I speak today of him with whom I have been associated for so many years, and to whose worth and memory we are paying tribute.

It was my rare privilege and good fortune to have the opportunity to enter his office as a law student on the 6th day of July, 1893, and from that time I was more or less associated with him to the date of his death. I feel myself deeply indebted to him and his example and friendly counsel for any distinction that I may have obtained in my professional career, and I loved and venerated him to the last moment of his life.

He was extremely dignified and impressive in his manner, lucid in his arrangement of facts, and choice and elegant in his diction, and his reason of my association with him I can safely say that I never have known a lawyer who investigated a case more thoroughly and effectually. He not only established his own reputation by legal deductions and authority, but anticipated and obviated every objection of his adversary. His briefs were models of deep research and learning, and not unfrequently of classical elegance. He, to an unusual degree, was respected by the distinguished men of the day as a learned lawyer, an able jurist and an accomplished scholar.

As a lawyer and jurist, he was distinguished by the extent and depth of his learning, and by the accuracy and admirable method with which he performed the duties of his profession. His opinions and other papers on legal subjects were drawn up with logical precision, and in a style of peculiar elegance. He was also a classical scholar, and this in connection with his profound knowledge of the law, procured for him from Rutgers University the honorary degree of "Doctor of Laws."

He took a commendable pride in being the President of the State House Association of Kingston, which has charge of the Senate House in which the original Constitution of New York was framed in 1777.

His precepts as a philosopher were sound and practical. As a jurist, he was learned, logical, discriminating and profound. As a scholar, we have the most pleasing evidence of his refined taste and cultivated mind, in the many papers which he has written. They exhibit the sterling qualities of his frankness, a pure taste and gentlemanly breeding; and these papers are also distinguished for the purity, dignity, and perspicuity of the style, for the gracefulness and elegance of their diction, and for classical scholarship, being replete with the rarest allusions culled from Roman and English authors, and many of which are as much to be admired for the aptitude of their application as for their intrinsic beauty.

If strong intellect and extensive knowledge, fixed industry, the conception of great ends, and perseverance, and success in their execution, self an exalted sense of honor, incorruptible integrity, energy of purpose, consummate prudence, impregnable fortitude, a broad, generous and unselfish patriotism, charity, ever active, wise and fervent—all these qualities—in union with most amiable temper and the gentlest of manners—and in addition too, with all the noble graces of the Christian faith, if these constitute a great and good man, then that man was Judge Clearwater.

Another Southern "11"
Will Oppose Army

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Another fighting southern college, the Virginia Military Institute of Lexington, will be Army's second gridiron opponent of the 1933 season here on Saturday, October 7. The southerners, who will have a large cheering section at the game, are reported to have a very fast light team which should give Lt. Davidson's cadets a real workout, as well as the opportunity to test the plays he will use against Illinois.

The ticket box will be open at Michie Stadium at 12:30 p. m. in order that visitors, who desire to witness the review and inspection of the Corps of Cadets at 1:10 p. m., may purchase good seats before the review.

The Army team came out of the hard game with the heavy Mercer eleven last Saturday in excellent condition, which gave the coaches much satisfaction. The play in this game as well as the work this week of "Pete" Kopecek and Paul Burlingame, ends, has been conspicuous. The most outstanding play shown has been Joe Stanco's blocking and tackling. He is expected to reach great heights this season.

Lt. Davidson stated he would start his regular team against V. M. I. The Army will line up with Brown, Stanco, Buckler and Johnson or King in the backfield. Kopecek and Burlingame will be at the ends, Hutchinson and Winn, tackles, with Buckman at center while Stillman and Jablonsky, captain, will draw the guard assignments.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Last January a mite of a 16-year-old lad, weighing barely 30 pounds, arrived in Havana, unknown, but with a desire to ride. He said his name was Jack Westrope and he was from Baker, Mont. But that didn't mean anything.

Today, however, the same lad, grown to where he tips the scales at all of 95 pounds, is the country's ranking jockey, holder of the modern record for the American turf and hailed as another Earl Sande.

Riding in the "big time" only a little over a year, the story of the diminutive Westrope is similar to that of many other youngsters who have come out of the west to rise to fame and fortune in a saddle. Born in Montana, he has been riding horses ever since he can remember, getting his early experience on a cattle ranch.

The baby-faced youngster faced the acid test of all good jockeys at Agua Caliente in February, 1932, when he was thrown heavily from his mount. It was feared the promising apprentice was through. But after several weeks in the hospital recovering from a concussion, a broken jaw and numerous minor internal injuries, Westrope returned to the racing wars, riding a winner the day after he was discharged from the hospital.

Gris Nig Amet

Westrope's older brother was killed at the Agua Caliente last season, but even that did not deter the Montana flash from continuing on his way to the top.

Westrope is a colorful type. He lacks the breeziness of Hank Mills, but is inclined more to the friendliness that has made Silvio Council so popular with racing fans. Returning to the stand to weigh out, win or lose, there is always a trace of a smile on his face. Should he have won, however, the smile is wider and he jumps out of the saddle and struts to the scales with a widening grin that quickly earns him more friends.

Beats Gilbert's Mark

When Westrope scored with Mrs. Payne Whitney's Night's End at Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., September 12, it was his 213th winner of the year, one more than the modern record of 212 hung up by the equally brilliant Johnny Gilbert of Pittsburgh, Kan., last year.

Although he still has more than three months to go, it is hardly possible the Montana apprentice will match the all-time record of 385 victories made by Walter Miller in 1906.

"Y" ALLEYS WILL BE READY FOR PLAY SOON

The Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. held a special meeting to consider the following recommendations of the bowling committee. "The bowling committee after careful consideration recommends that the privilege of bowling on the Y. M. C. A. alleys be confined strictly to members and guests when accompanied by a member. The committee further recommends that the usual membership rates for bowling prevail." After carefully considering the recommendation, the board adopted it by unanimous vote.

By unanimous vote also, the board voted to reestablish the social membership which was discontinued some time ago.

The board of directors believe that this action will give members of the Y. M. C. A. an opportunity to make larger use of the alleys than has been possible in previous years.

The bowling committee, consisting of James Scott, Emil Boesneck, Stanley Wiene, Ernest LeFevre and Harry Rieman, will meet this evening to discuss possibilities of organizing a league among the members of the "Y". All those interested are urged to get in touch with any member of the committee or call the "Y" office.

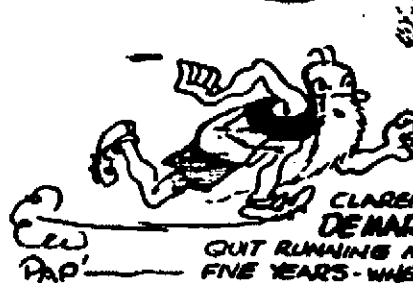

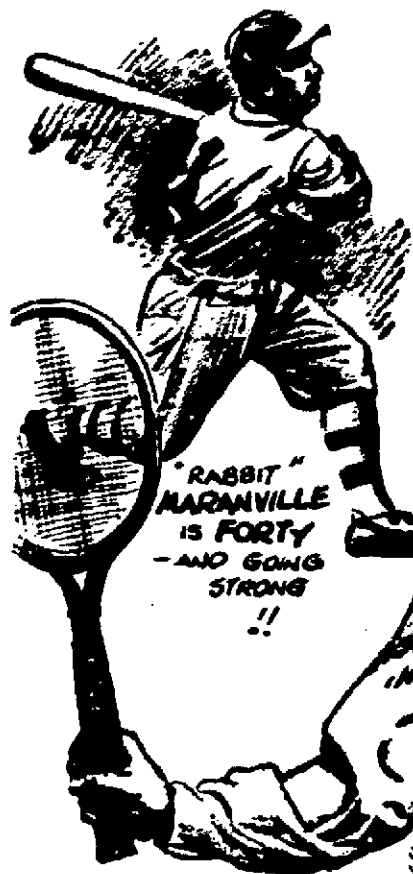

The "Y" alleys have been resurfaced and are in excellent shape. After the meeting tonight the committee will make a definite announcement concerning the opening date which will very likely be some night this week.

BUDDY MYER

This is the 15th of a series of personality sketches on individual stars of the Washington Senators and New York Giants, world series rivals.

Washington (AP)—Those who know the fine points of the game say that Buddy Myer has been playing inspired baseball at second base for the Washington Senators this season.

His boss, Joe Cronin, says he is one of the best base runners in the league. He stretches singles into doubles and doubles into triples, and his constant line of chatter at second has kept the whole infield on its toes.

Buddy is another of those Mississippi State graduates who has made good in the big leagues. In 1925, he was invited to the Cleveland training camp, but refused to sign a contract.

Instead he signed with New Orleans and was sold the same year to Washington. In 1927, he was traded to Boston, but Griffith always regretted it and in 1929 sent the Red Sox five players to get Buddy back again. He has been with the team ever since.

Bucky Harris, manager of the Detroit Tigers, claims that Buddy has been one of the mainstays in the pennant drive of the Nationals. Although he is not considered the best fielding second mucker in the league, he is aggressive and a dangerous man at the bat.

Buddy is a native of Ellenville, N.Y., and is 29 years old. He weighs 165 pounds, stands five feet, ten and one-half inches, throws right but bats left-handed.

Industrial Alley
League Planned

An Industrial Bowling League, similar to the Mercantile loop conducted at the Y. M. C. A., will be run at Homer Emerick's new alleys on Albany avenue this season, an organization meeting having been called for Wednesday night, October 4, at 7:30 o'clock. All teams interested are requested to have representatives at the session. Each team is to consist of three men.

The eight new alleys at Emerick's are proving popular with local players. Last night all of them were in demand. High games rolled during the evening were as follows: Homer Emerick 252, Fred Rice 248, 242, Ralph DeGraff, 247, Bert Davis 244, Walt Burger 241, Jack Martin 237, Gil Simpson 234. At least 29 other 200 games were rolled.

Harry Styles bowled the first game on the alleys.

Thursday night the New York Telephone Company will use two alleys, having reserved them for the occasion.

Stone Ridge Wins
Third Over Hurons

The Stone Ridge A. C. registered its third straight victory over the Huron Indians Sunday at Stone Ridge. Final score of the contest was 4-1. Hornbeck pitched for the Riders, allowing only three hits. He would have had a shut-out only for a wild pitch that got by his battery mate, Roosa. Hornbeck and Roosa got two hits apiece for Stone Ridge and Moore, Cragan, Muller, Jansen and Lawrence one each. H. Raak and Avery were the only players to hit safely for the Hurons. The Indians made three errors, Stone Ridge one. Next Sunday the two teams will meet in the fifth game of their series. A victory for the Riders will finish it.

Rubber From Tree Like Milk. Rubber, as it comes from the tree, is very much like milk, and in the process of manufacture undergoes a treatment similar to that of milk in the manufacture of cheese. The rubber tree also tends to climatic conditions like a cow, and produces a larger or smaller quantity of latex according to the weather.

GRAPHIC GOLF

EMPLOYING the right hand and arm alone in the downswing robs the golfer not only of considerable force

but also of a full use of a wider arc.

With the left employed and the muscles of the back adding body force to the blow, a backhand swing of considerable strength can be utilized. One need only to experiment by using the right alone and see how ineffectively that member develops the speed of the club-head. Coupled with the left side and arm, however, not only a forceful, speedy blow is developed but also considerable leverage caused by the action of the two combining to transmit force from the center of the body. This coordination results in greater length.

Another feature of the backhand left is that it enables one to swing from the inside out, a stroke advocated by the pros as the one most conducive of success.

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—Those who de-

next few months

shouldn't look for a Wash-

They'll have to look for one from Louisiana.

the fall and early winter. Three things promise to keep him at home and on his toes.

First, the senate committee may resume its investigation of alleged election irregularities at any time now.

Secondly, the New Orleans district attorney is all set to prosecute the 60-odd persons in connection with alleged ballot box "scandals" recently uncovered in the state.

Thirdly, the all-important mayoralty election in New Orleans comes in January.

Looking To Albany?

The intriguing angle to the po-standpoint of Washington observ-

While Mr. Roosevelt has made it plain that he will take no part in the affair, his postmaster general's position is another thing entirely. "Big Jim," it must be remembered, is chairman not only of the national democratic committee, but the New York state committee as well.

All of this talk of running as independent democrat against

Tammany Hall's Mayor O'Brien, and Farley's reported connection with it, has aroused speculation in Washington as to whether the postmaster general has ambitions to be governor of New York some day.

In another year Farley should have cleared up his duties in Washington fairly well. The postmaster gled by that time and various odds tered in.

The governor's chair at Albany might not be such a bad place.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Population estimates for Rockefeller Center indicate that when the twelve buildings are fully completed and tenanted, the development, which occupies about one-fifth of a square mile in the heart of Manhattan, will be more than a "city within a city." The estimates place the total daily population at more than 215,000, which is greater than the total population of Syracuse, N. Y., Hartford, Conn., or Omaha, Neb. From a population viewpoint, Rockefeller Center will be larger than Venice, Damascus, Cape Town, Valparaiso, Geneva and many other well-known cities. Considered as a city, it would be thirty-sixth among all the cities of the United States. The estimate includes permanent occupants of the buildings, stores, shops, restaurants and theaters of the development and daily visitors. It does not include, however, those who will use the broad walks and promenades merely to pass from one point to another.

The resident daily population is estimated at 31,000 persons, a total reached, in accordance with common practice, by figuring one occupant for every 110 feet of rentable floor space. Nearly one-half of the resident population will occupy the 70-story RCA building, the towering central structure of the development. An additional 22,000 will be housed in the 31-story RKO building and 600 each in the British and French buildings. Approximately 700 persons comprise the working staffs of the Radio City Music hall and the RKO Roxy theater. Included in the estimate of 180,000 daily transients are the patrons of the two theaters. Over a six-month period, the daily attendance at the larger averaged 18,500 persons and 6,400 for the smaller.

To make room for the development, 229 old residences and stores were razed on the three blocks between Forty-eighth and Fifty-first street and Fifth and Sixth avenues. And those old buildings had a total population of only about 3,000 persons.

Free lunch is back all over the city. Speakeasies, in competition with legitimate beer selling places, are giving away more and more food. What a bonanza that would have been for Tom Sharkey! It is well known that the battler was thrifty and that when he had a chance to obtain free food, he took it. In that connection, there is the story of the time when Sharkey, training for a fight, economized on rations by training on free lunches. Near his quarters was a saloon where an excellent array was set forth. Each day, Sharkey would come in, buy a couple of beers and eat all the free lunch. The proprietor, worried over the loss and not wishing to offend the fighter, pondered the problem at length. Finally, he reached what he regarded as a satisfactory solution. In place of the worst, cheese, etc., he set out dog and puppy biscuits.

Sharkey came in at his usual time, bought his beer and attacked the free lunch. When he left, there wasn't a single biscuit on the counter. The next day, he came in and did the same thing. The saloonkeeper then sat down and figured. The dog biscuits cost more than the regular food. So when Sharkey came in the third day, he found the old selections back. When he had consumed them, he went up to the saloonkeeper and remarked, "Your lunch is all right. But what's become of those tasters you had the last couple of days?"

It is said that Sharkey was the hero of that old story concerning the lobster. He ordered lobster in Shanley's and got one with only one claw. Shanley appeared in response to his kick. "They will fight in the cars, you know," he said, apologetically. "All right," retorted Sharkey. "Take this one back and bring me a winner."

Huge Wine Cellar Under Church in Heidelberg
Heidelberg, Germany.—Few visitors to Heidelberg know that under the St. Anna Catholic church there is a wine cellar containing the jubilee wine keg of 1886 (the five hundredth anniversary of the university), which has a capacity of 13,000 liters. Another wine cellar of the university town leads under the railroad tracks into a cavern 30 meters deep into the cliffs. Many of Heidelberg's wine cellars, which for years were used as beer halls, have been gradually reconverted to their original use.

Boy Rides Bull to Save Thrown Farmer

Tiffin, Ohio.—John Deusch, eighty-two, farm worker, turned matador to save a neighbor's life.
Deusch, passing the farm of Upton Albright, stock buyer, saw a bull knock Albright down and trample him under foot.
The youth leaped on the mad-dened animal's back and got a stranglehold on its windpipe.
The bull abandoned the attack on Albright and raced around the field, bucking wildly in a futile attempt to dislodge Deusch. When the youth tired of his ride, he slid off and dashed for safety behind a fence.

Dollfuss Would Rebuild Austria As Example To Materialistic World

By WADE WERNER.

Vienna (AP).—Professional politicians, general election campaigns and socialistic trade unions would be impossible under the new constitution Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss has promised Austria.

The Chancellor has revealed only the barest outlines of the new "staendestaet" or state-form, under which he wishes Austrians to live.

Church Role Certain.

He has said enough, however, to make clear that the new Austria would be organized something like Mussolini's Italy and something like Hitler's Germany, but not exactly like either of them.

One point which seems clear is that the "staendestaet" would work in close cooperation with the Roman Catholic Church.

Dollfuss is, above all, devout. Austria is 95 per cent Catholic and he sees his mission not merely as the defense of his country's independence and the maintenance of orderly government but as the building of a state on Christian principles.

Materialistic philosophies of life and government are to be the tragic state of affairs in the world today, Dollfuss profoundly believes, and statesmen who would lead their countries into a peaceful and happy future must recognize that fact.

Wants National Unity.

One of the most destructive of these materialistic philosophies, in the opinion of Dollfuss and those who with him are working out the new constitution, is the class doctrine of Marxism. There must be no division of society into proletarian and capitalist classes in the new Austria.

"We must learn that work unites us all," is their pronouncement.

Therefore each trade, each industry, each profession, must organize its own life, with employers and employees working out the problems of their particular branch together.

Representation in a national chamber—whether legislative or merely advisory—would be based on this same organization of citizens into occupational groups. How many farmers, how many industrial workers, how many physicians, lawyers, shopkeepers and so on would sit in this chamber is not yet clear.

Sees Church As Nation's Hope

But the theory is that the physicians would send only outstanding physicians to represent them; the shopkeepers only men who have the respect and confidence of their fellow-traders; the farmers only "dirt farmers."

In a word, no professional politicians would have a chance to work their way up by sheer politics.

There is no one English word for "staendestaet." The phrase "corporate state" is not an exact translation but suggests approximately.

Dollfuss, in his efforts to bring the meaning home to audiences, has used the example of a farm household in which all members feel united by their work.

"The farmer, his son and his hired man all sit at the same table and dip their soup out of the same bowl," he said. "The same state of belonging together and working together must be expressed in the new organization of trade, industrial and professional groups."
